

ABSTRACT

In a data-replication system including a plurality of computers in communication with at least one network, each of said computers maintaining a substantially similar database thereon, a method and system applicable for filtering requests is disclosed. The method comprises the steps of capturing each of the requests, determining the consequences of the request, and precluding storing the consequences of the request when said request matches known criteria.